Frank H. Gassler's diverse practice encompasses all types of personal injury, wrongful death and property damage products liability litigation. In the course of his career, he has defended numerous products, including paints and coatings, household and industrial chemicals, solvents, agricultural pesticides, electronic devices, tools, automotive and aircraft components, heavy equipment, pharmaceuticals, medical devices, sports equipment, toys, electrical and plumbing supplies, pool equipment, smoke detectors and alarms, motorcycles, bicycles and lawnmowers.

Mr. Gassler has also handled a variety of construction defect litigation cases, including "sick building" and mold cases, involving heating ventilation and air conditioning systems, roofing systems, construction materials, cladding, windows, water intrusion, and building design.

In addition, Mr. Gassler routinely represents non-medical professionals such as lawyers, accountants, real estate agents, architects, engineers, appraisers, and other professionals in professional liability or "malpractice" cases.
